

CHARMS OF HUNTING AND FISHING IN JACKSON'S HOLE

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Miller of this city have recently returned from a three weeks' hunting trip which they made to the Jackson Hole country, Wyoming, in company with Mr. and Mrs. James L. Mead of Chicago. Mr. Mead is the proprietor of one of the largest houses dealing exclusively in bicycles and automobiles in the United States. The party was highly successful from a sportsman standpoint, six big elk falling to the lot of the four.

From City to Wilderness.

From St. Anthony the route lay across the Teton pass into Wyoming, and from there northeast along the south fork of the Snake river to Elk. This part of the trip was made by wagon. From Elk into the heart of the Teton country saddle horses and pack animals were used.

This portion of the journey, and the camping itself taxed the ingenuity of both Mrs. Mead and Mrs. Miller to keep the garb of civilization intact, and at the conclusion of the second day out, both relinquished and donned the costume more suitable to underbrush and the other inconveniences of camp.

Not content with remaining on the outer fringe of the choice hunting territory, of camping beside and between civilization and wilderness, hearing of game and fish through guides, but seeing (and getting) none, the party under the guidance of a range warden, James Reeling, proceeded to strike into the very heart of the Teton forest reserve.

Camp was finally pitched at a point midway between the Buffalo and Pacific creeks. Here, 5000 feet above sea level, in saddle at day, rolled up in sleeping bag at night, the "hunters" spent several weeks, fishing and shooting.

What Hunters May Find.

Hunters visiting the Jackson Hole country at this time of the year may, according to Mr. Miller, find excellent sport if they get out of the well traveled ruts. This is the whistling season—when the rival bucks that stand as the powers that be to each herd send forth their messages of defiance—a long-drawn-out sound that resembles most the screech of a siren.

This fact is of benefit to the ambitious sportsman, for the buck betrays his presence when his enemy kills several miles away. The "whistles" are of much value in guiding hunters to the locality of the elk herds.

Sportsmen who desire to add a bear skin to their trophies will find little save an occasional bear track to attract them during the summer and fall months as far as the Jackson Hole country is concerned. The bear, most of them, hit the trail for Yellowstone as soon as spring is well advanced, and stay there until the last tourist has departed and the last chance of a free feed vanished.

Mountain goats here, as elsewhere, are scarce. Only the rangers and guides who spend practically all year in the less settled region, are awarded a sight of these kings of the crags. Fish, several varieties of trout, and land-locked salmon may be found in almost any of the creeks with which the Teton forest reserve abounds.

Getting Close to Nature.

For the sportsmen who can find pleasure in viewing wild game in its native haunts—in getting close enough to nature to see how her wards live when unhampered by man, the Teton reserve, Mr. Miller declares, has prepared a feast of good things.

If one is careful, and above all patient, he may if good luck favor him, lie hour after hour watching a herd of elk graze, most of them within a stone's throw. The hornless doe and the graceful little elk, interesting for a while, are forgotten when the big buck, the guardian of the herd, makes his appearance.

The sportsman, he ever so kind hearted, can not restrain a desire to break the picture of domestic happiness with a .30-30. The action is as quick as the thought, yet the watchful buck has been quicker; his keen eye or his keen ear or well trained nose has warned him. With a snort he is off with his charges scattering at his heels.

That elk did fall to the hunter's prowess of all four campers, however, is attested by one of the accompanying photographs. As the requirements of the reserve include a strict injunction against shooting more than two elk, the local people may be regarded as having had the limit of luck—as well as good marksmanship.

Fishing From Horseback.

The novel experience of fishing from "aboard" a horse was one of the pleasurable incidents of the trip that fell to the lot of Mrs. Miller. Not any ordinary creek was this, but one which had been trained to go into the water without stirring up a whirl-pool; to stop and stand perfectly still at a sign from the rider, and to edge step by step to the bank when he heard the reel buzz and the rod spring back with a jerk.

The advantage of having such a trained companion on a fishing trip is apparent when one thinks of the king-doms he has sighed away for lack of a horse, as, standing on the bank, he was told that "right out there are fish to be caught but it's pretty deep."

This particular horse, had the business down to a science, as may be seen from the photograph. He had been trained, his rider was told, for a "fisher." When fishing on such animals, the sportsman must of course be clad in waist boots since often the horse takes a depth of nearly four feet.

Mrs. Miller is shown in an accompanying photograph in the act of throwing out a "trout tempter." The picture represents the horse in comparatively shallow water.

Guides Find Way.

Mr. Miller tells of an incident that occurred one afternoon while he and Mrs. Miller were out hunting, that illustrates the wonderful instinct which the guides have for finding their way over mountain and through forest.

A pause was made early in the afternoon on the particular occasion referred to, in order that the guide might scour the surrounding country for game with Mr. Miller's fine binocular.

A herd of elk was finally discovered several miles off and the three turned their horses in that direction and proceeded to go after the game. About 4 o'clock when the party started to return to camp, the guide discovered that the field glass which he had been carrying, was missing. As the last time it had been used was when a stony had been made several hours before, Mr. Miller mentally bade good-bye to it. The guide had been leaning against a tree while using the glass, a tree that differed in no wise from thousands of others that covered the mountains. There was no trace of the road to follow to regain the visible binocular, no particular attention had been paid to the locality, and yet when some distance from camp, the guide informed Mr. Miller that he thought by switching off the road, he might be able to find the spot. This was done and a few minutes later the guide was sure he could see the tree. A ride to this spot was rewarded, the glass being found where it had been left on the ground after being removed from its case.

Among the most interesting mementos which Mr. Miller brings home from the trip are over a hundred photographs of natural scenery and camp life. Every phase of a trip such as the party took has been held on paper, and the whole forms an instructive collection. A number of the pictures might be so grouped as to form a series of daily events.

Thus the "only way" to "pack a horse" is shown with a fidelity to nature that calls forth not for the little beast that has to stand all the tugging of girths and cinches. Then is illustrated breaking camp and taking up the march to the next stop. Fishing and hunting scenes are there in plenty.

Mr. Miller has had printed nearly 150 different views.

GOOD STORIES WELL TOLD.

(Portland Oregonian.)

Seth Low, while traveling in Rome, was accosted by a fellow American who was seeing the sights of the Eternal city. Wishing to be affable, the tourist said:

"Now that you are in Rome, Mr. Low, I presume that you are as good as the Romans do."

"Not at all," confessed the ex-mayor. "I am too much of an American for that."

"What a discourtesy, though, to this grand old city," protested the other, sweeping his hand toward the majestic dome of St. Peter's.

"What?" retorted Mr. Low; "would you have me, too, engage in the laudable work of fleeing generous Americans?"

(New York Times.)

After Eugene Field's return from his first trip to Europe, where he spent his patrimony like a prince, and before he went to Denver, he had a little close personal experience with hard times. One day he walked into a leading St. Louis hotel, and squaring himself before the register, inscribed his name in his well known copper plate chirography. The clerk had never heard of him, but he read the name with a quick glance and said:

"Do you wish a room, Mr. Field?"

"No," was the answer.

"Dinner?"

"No."

"Then may I ask what you do want?" continued the clerk.

"I just wanted to arrive," replied Field solemnly. "I had not arrived at a good hotel for many months. I feel better. Thank you," and he stalked out with long, heavy strides.

Tom Watson, the Populist nominee, is in an enviable position. He may say anything he wishes to say and do as he pleases without fear of the results in November.

Manufacturers' Sample Sale!

We make a specialty of buying up Bankrupt Stocks and Manufacturers' Sample Lines. In the purchase of samples from manufacturer or jobber, there is only one garment or article of a kind; but the line invariably embraces qualities from the most inexpensive runs to the very finest grades. Samples are sold to the dealer from 25 to 50 per cent lower than the regular wholesale price; this enables the retailer to offer the merchandise to the public at actual regular wholesale cost and still gives him a good margin of profit. We are always on the lookout for these buys, and the judicious buyers can invariably secure from our stock just the things they need at prices as low as the regular wholesale cost.

WE HAVE JUST PURCHASED A SAMPLE LINE FROM ONE OF THE BIGGEST JOBBER HOUSES IN THE COUNTRY. IT IS ESPECIALLY STRONG IN LADIES' AND CHILDREN'S HOSIERY AND UNDERWEAR IN FALL AND WINTER WEIGHTS, UMBRELLAS, TOWELS AND LINENS, LADIES' WAISTS, SKIRTS, JACKETS AND KNIT GOODS, FANCY COLLARS AND NECKWEAR, TOILET ARTICLES AND JEWELRY, KID GLOVES FOR STREET AND EVENING WEAR, GOLF GLOVES AND MITTS, MEN'S HATS, WHITE AND FANCY SHIRTS, UNDERWEAR AND HOSIERY. OVER THREE THOUSAND PIECES OF MERCHANDISE FOR THE NEXT THREE DAYS AT WHOLESALE COST.

THREE DAYS ONLY!

In conjunction with this sale we offer the following specials from our regular stock.

Stamps with every purchase. If you have not started to save stamps, come in—we'll give you a book and a dollar's worth of stamps, free.

Underwear and Hosiery

Light weight, fleeced lined Jersey garment for ladies, that have always sold for 50c garment, this week 33c
 Plush back heavy winter weight Underwear for boys. Good washers and drawers. Regular 40c a pair, this week 29c
 Ladies' Misses and Children's Hosiery, heavy ribbed and absolutely fast. Black 15c and 20c. Colors, grades, pair 10c

Fancy Baskets

2,000 Hand-made Fancy Baskets of very description, a bankrupt purchase. This week—

Half Price

TURKISH TOWELS.

A good size Turkish Towel that we have been selling at 30c a pair, today 9c

CHILDREN'S SCHOOL DRESSES of pretty plaid materials—blouse front with belt. Our $1.25 dresses—
$1.29

SOAP.

H. & H. Soap—A household soap of exceptional quality. So pure it will not injure the most delicate skin in toilet use. For cleaning the hair, washing woollens and silks, and sold cheap enough for common household use. Always 15c a large cake. Today 7c

Men's Underwear.

Heavy cotton ribbed garments in tan color. Extra well made and satin finish. Regular 50c garments. Today 49c
 A natural wool garment, silk sewn. The regular $1.25 quality. 85c
 A natural wool French, ribbed, silk facings and sewn. Sells at $1.50 a garment. Today 98c
 A Jersey ribbed special in broken sizes. Not a garment sold for less than 60c. Today 45c

BELTS.

Pretty Novelty Belts of the very latest style. In blues, greens, brown and burnt orange. Regular 25c belts. Today 29c

STATIONERY.

We shall put on sale tomorrow one hundred and twenty-five pieces of Hubert's Fine Stationery. During this sale—HALF PRICE.

UMBRELLAS.

Rain Umbrellas—Paragon frame, good covers, just the thing for school children. Regular $1.00 value. Today 69c

CORSETS.

Flowered Balises, a new model straight front corset that retails always at 50c. This week 33c
 A good serviceable corset in white and drab, straight front, dip hips, supporters in front. Regular 75c. This week 59c
 The celebrated "Royal Worcester" in all the new models. Sells always at $2.50 pair. This week $1.59
 White Batiste-Corsets, straight front; one of the best $1.00 Corsets on the market. This week 59c

SHOES

As an extraordinary inducement we have taken all our Men's, Ladies' and Children's shoes that sell at $1.75 and $2.00 a pair and place them on sale for this week at—

$1.35

Every pair guaranteed to give satisfaction.

Millinery

Hats—Felt salons of the very latest models, trimmed with novelty and quality; come in tan, blue, reds and modes effect; $5.00 to $5.50 each. For today, choice $1.65

Blankets and Comforts.

Come in white, gray and tans, with pink, blue and red borders. $2.00 value, sale price 59c
 $1.50, 11x4, sale price $1.10
 $2.00, 11x4, sale price $1.39
 $3.50, 11x4, dark blue extra size and weight $2.75
 $3.50, 11x4, all wool $4.25
 $4.25, 11x4, all wool $4.75
 $5.50, 11x4, all wool $5.65

Large size unusually pretty covers of good material. $2.00 values, sale price $1.35
 $2.50 values, sale price $1.75
 $3.00 values, sale price $2.29
 $3.25 values, sale price $2.50
 $4.25 values, sale price $3.29

Dress Goods.

20 pieces of plain and novelty Dress Goods. The prettiest showing of dress fabrics to be seen in the city; this week 29c

All-wool Fancy Waistings, in dark mixture goods and medium and light colored fancy figured tricot, all 50c and 75c values; this week 39c

Medium and heavy-weight FLANNELLETTE, of very pretty designs. Both light and dark colors; 25c and 35c values; this week 12c

Silk Thread.

Black Sewing Silk, guaranteed full measure and quality, regular 50c, this week 5c

Violet Talcum

Hubert's Perfumed Violet Talcum Powder. No powder on the market superior to this brand. Standard article at 25c a can. Today 17c

Ribbons

All silk wash taffeta. Full five inches wide, all colors. The best regular 50c value ever offered. Today 14c

SUITS AND WAISTS

WRAPPERS—Pretty Wash Flannellette Wrappers; tucked and braided trimmed, cape shoulders and deep flounce; always $1.50. This week 98c

Flannellette Waists

Extra good material in all colors; a waist that was never offered at less than $1.00. Today 65c

Walking Skirts

Melton cloth, hand trimmed, in dark blue and black; splendid material and sells at $3.00 each. For today $1.98

Wholesale Cost.

BARTLING'S NEW YORK CASH STORE